1. The Progressive Concentration headquarters is at Gunung Sahari No. 84, Batavia-C.
2. The organization publishes the Onbouw Pambangunan, a Dutch-Malay fortnightly, an atheistic, quasi-scientific publication, disseminating extreme socialist and Communist principles.
3. The leaders of the Progressive Concentration are:
 - a. J. de Graaff, Jr. -- Address: Maduraweg No. 24, Pavilion, Batavia. De Graaff came to Batavia in 1946 to serve as head of the Document Division, Public Relations Bureau of the Netherlands East Indies Government. This department was commonly referred to as Van Mook's "propaganda bureau". In this position, de Graaff earned f. 1,000 per month. He associated with such top Republican leaders as Sutan Sjahrir, Amir Sjariffudin, Dr. A. K. Gani, and Raden Suwirjo (Mayor of Batavia). The Dutch knew that de Graaff passed on information to the Republicans. However, no action was taken against him because he was backed by several influential people including, K. F. V. Verboeket* and Dr. J. Ozinga*. De Graaff was discharged in 1947 and subsequently became manager of A. Musin Dasaad's concern, Kantjil Mas. Since 1948, de Graaff has written various articles which are to be published in the Onbouw Pambangunan.
 - b. D. M. G. Koch -- A Dutch extreme socialist, who did much to "socialize" the Sin Ming Hui and its affiliated labor party, the Sin Ming Leo Kung Hui. Koch is a cadre instructor of the Sin Ming movement in Bandung.
